Sahil Sinha

Sahil is an experienced and professional junior advocate with a particular focus on complex casework. From the early stages of an investigation until the conclusion of proceedings, Sahil offers advice and advocacy in the most difficult criminal cases. Sahil is experienced in the instruction and calling of a broad range of experts, including complex and challenged pathological, clinical and psychiatric evidence.

Sahil has a background of corporate and financial crime and internal investigations and continues to practice in those areas. Sahil prosecutes and defends across the spectrum of criminal litigation and also accepts instructions in corporate crime, inquests and inquiries, and prison law.

Homicide

Sahil is a Grade 4 CPS prosecutor. Sahil prosecutes and defends in all forms of homicide cases, and has particular experience in cases of legal complexity and cases involving complex and challenged medical expert evidence. Sahil is currently instructed in a number of child homicide cases and recently appeared in the prosecution of a mother for murdering her child 11 years later, the CPE having originally declined to prosecute.

Serious and Organised Crime

Sahil both prosecutes and defends in cases involving sophisticated and high-profile organised crime and criminal conspiracies, including those involving controlled drugs, blackmail and kidnap, and firearms. Sahil has particular experience in cases involving the use of covert tactics and investigatory powers. Sahil is Grade 3 on the CPS Serious Crime specialist panel.

Sahil was led by Tim Cray KC in the prosecution of R v Jovanovic and others, members of the group that committed the highest value burglaries in the UK and burgled the homes of Tamara Ecclestone, Vichai Srivaddhanaprabha and Frank Lampard.

Terrorism

Sahil accepts instructions in terrorism cases and is Grade 3 on the CPS Counter Terrorism specialist panel. Notably, Sahil acted as disclosure junior in the prosecution of Jack Renshaw who was convicted of plotting to kill an MP and was one of six men alleged to be part of the far-right group National Action.

Modern Slavery & Human Trafficking

Sahil has been instructed in the prosecution of modern slavery organisations of different sizes and levels of sophistication around the country. Notably, Sahil has acted for the Crown in Operation Fort, the prosecution of the largest modern slavery network uncovered in the UK and featured in the BBC's Panorama. Sahil also has experience of both prosecuting and defending cases involving victims of modern slavery and the defence under section 45 of the Act.

Sexual Offences

Sahil prosecutes and defends cases involving sexual offences and has experience defending historic child sexual offences. Sahil has completed vulnerable witness training and accepts instructions in cases involving children and vulnerable witnesses or defendants.

Sahil was recently led in the prosecution of R v A and B in respect of serious violent and sexual offences committed by two parents on their baby in the first weeks of his life.

Cybercrime

Sahil has a keen interest in cybercrime and accepts instructions in all areas. Sahil was instructed in R v Akala – a prosecution following the unlawful access of 160 accounts held by Camelot (then operator of the National Lottery).

Financial and corporate crime

Sahil has appeared in the prosecutions of a variety of dishonest enterprises and confiscation proceedings, including cases involving restraint and asset forfeiture. Prior to joining chambers, Sahil worked for a leading US law firm. During his time there Sahil was involved in the representation of companies and individuals facing prosecution by the SFO, CMA, FCA, PRA, CPS, as well as overseas prosecutors such as the US DoJ. Sahil accepts instructions to advise about all aspects of investigations and has experience of conducting investigations of all forms, including corporate internal investigations, investigations in the representation of individuals, LPP and disclosure reviews.
